Expert Opinion

The Canadian Government recently sent an appraiser to the principal bicycle factories in this country, to determine the exact value of various makes for import into Canada. After an exhaustive investigation, his report to his Government rated

Huxley's Wife.

When the Rattlesnake was in Sydney harbor, the officers were invited to a ball, and young Huxley among the number. There for the first time he met his future wife, whose parents resided at Sydney. A few days after they were engaged, and the ship sailed for the Tower straits to complete the survey of the north coast of Australia, all communication being cut off for months at a time, and then she returned direct to England. After that brief acquaintance (not, I believe, longer than a fortnight) it was seven years before the lovers saw one another. At the end of this time, on Huxley's appointment to the School of Mines, he was in a position to claim his bride and welcome her to their first home in St. John's Wood. He often used to say that to engage the affections of a young girl under these circumstances, knowing that he would have to leave her for an indefinite time, and with only the remotest prospect of ever marrying, was an act most strongly to be reprobated, and he often held it out as a warning to the kind never to do anything of the kind, and yet they all married young and all happily.

Huxley's love at first sight and constancy during those seven long years of separation were richly rewarded, for it is impossible to imagine a pair more thoroughly united. —North American Review.

The Fighting Swiss.

The year 1512 saw the Swiss mercenaries at the zenith of their power, when waving Austria and France alike away from Milan, they installed therein the ruler of their own choice. In the same year they met the Landsknechts at the passage of the Oglio and Ticino, and, fording the rivers stark naked, beat them back without waiting even to dress themselves. A few months later they showed even more magnificent insolence when besieged by the French in Novara; throwing the gates open, they begged the enemy not to be at the pains of making a breach, but to walk straight in. "Donnez-vous donc la peine d'entrer." The French made no reply, except to hammer away with their artillery, whereupon the Swiss mockingly hung the breaches with sheets as sufficient protection against so feeble a foe. Shortly after arrived re-enforcements from Switzerland, which, without pausing to rest more than an hour after a long and hurried march, dashed out in disorder against the encompassing troops and dispersed them with terrible loss. "If we could only reckon upon obedience in our men," said the Swiss leader, "we should march through the whole of France." —Macmillan's Magazine.

Hitchcock—Willnot.

The Anglo-Saxon suffixes "kin" and "cook" were used as diminutive or endearing forms of personal names, just as the Normans used the suffixes "et," "ot," "en" and "on." Thus from Hitch, itself a diminutive of Richard, we get the surnames Hitchkin, Hitchcock, Hitchens and Hitchison. Any common baptismal name affords a number of such variants, which because fixed as patronymics or surnames. There are Vegetarians Use Fleishly Names.

Vegetarian restaurants are by degrees giving up the use of such titles for their dishes as convey the idea of a meat diet, but they still find the word "steak" indispensable. Otherwise their bill of fare is much improved and of a more inviting character than it used to be. "Indian broth" reads well on a cold December day, and "braised onion with tomatoes" appeals to many. But what is "vegetable turkey?"

It seems to be rather a confession of weakness to be dependent on the animal world for names wherewith to invest the various preparations of vegetables, cereals and fruits. To America they owe many forms of succulent and tempting food, such as fried corn, maize with pump and pineapple pudding made from the starchy fruit. The use of cheese, forbidden by some of the strictest followers of vegetarianism, enables the caterers to offer such savory dishes as Welsh rabbit, cheese fritters and custards, and the odors that are emitted are of the most savory and appetizing description. —London News.

An Error About Cats.

An error about cats, and a truly vulgar one, is that they lie on young children's breasts and suck their breath or suffocate them. Cats like to lie on the breast of a person they love, and are apt to show their happiness by now and then lifting their heads for a kiss or gently touching the face or neck above them with their paw; this sort of patting or stroking a beloved cheek or throat is one of the more human habits which dogs have not. Seeing one of our cats lying on her master's chest when he was asleep on the sofa, I understood how the notion had taken root; then, too, cats are luxurious and fond of warmth, and may sometimes share a baby's crib or cradle for that reason, as dogs certainly do. —Temple Bar.

The Growth of Trees.

The government entomologist of Tasmania reports on the results of experiments relating to the growth of trees at different times of the day. Measurements were taken as far as possible every three hours, with the following results: From 6 a. m. to 9 a. m., 8½ per cent of growth; from 9 a. m. to noon, 1½ per cent of growth; from noon to 3 p. m., no growth; from 3 p. m. to 6 p. m., no growth; from 6 p. m. to 9 p. m., 1½ per cent of growth; from 9 p. m. to 12 p. m., 3½ per cent of growth; from 12 p. m. to 6 a. m., 85 per cent of growth. The greatest growth in 24 hours were banksia rose, 6½ inches; geranium, 5½ inches; wattle, 4½ inches; acacia 2½ inches; rose 1½ inches.

Views of America.

Sir Walter Besant, in commenting on Mr. Hall Caine's views of America and published in The Daily Chronicle, says: "We don't know the American people in this country, and we ought to know them; they come over here by the thousand, by the hundred thousand, and we do nothing to entertain them or to make their acquaintance, or to show them that we should like to know them. Are we ashamed of ourselves—of our homes—of our women, especially—that we do not want to show ourselves to them? We have no reason to be ashamed. "The English woman is not so intellectually cultivated as the American, but she need not fear comparison. As for the people generally, I am right glad to see Hall Caine proclaiming the truth about them—that is, that they are 'almost childlike in their singleness of heart, easily moved by simple things, the youngest minded and the youngest hearted people in the world.'"

As I did not say this myself, I copy it, I steal it, and I adopt it. The material greatness of America takes away one's breath; the kindness of the Americans takes away one's power of criticism. One does not go away from a delightful evening and begin at once to carp and sneer and insinuate suggestions. Only, if by any machinery we could do something to make the American visitor feel at home with us, we should be doing a great thing for ourselves. I don't want him to be introduced to belted coats, but I want American men and women of culture to be able easily to meet English men and women of culture."

BEAUTIFUL AND STRONG!

The Greatest American Prima Donna Made Well by Paine's Celery Compound.

There was never a remedy so highly recommended as Paine's celery compound.

There was never a remedy in such universal demand.

For it makes people well! Every one among the thousands who have been delighted by the beautiful songs of Roma, the great prima donna, recognize in her one of the world-famous singers.

Born in California, she graduated with honors at Eastern musical colleges, and on her return to the coast, became first prima donna at the Tivoli Opera House in San Francisco.

It was while making the tour with the famous Marine Band of Washington last season, that the beautiful Roma felt the strain of travel, hurry, and work, yet in the evenings she greeted great audiences with smiles and cheerfulness without her nerves were steadied and her strength built up by Paine's celery compound. She says:

"In Paine's celery compound I find a very much long-felt want for the worries and exhaustive cares attendant upon an active professional life. Paine's celery compound brings restful strength to body and mind, invigorating the system and prolonging life."

Paine's celery compound has made thousands of people well. It has saved thousands of women from nervous prostration. It has made the weak strong. It has cured where everything else failed. Innumerable testimonials as to its wonderful value have been voluntarily sent to Wells & Richardson Co., who prepare it in Burlington, Vermont.

Paine's celery compound is the most remarkable remedy for the blood and nerves, known to the 19th century. It is employed by the foremost physicians in curing kidney and liver troubles and the diseases due to nervous disorders, faulty nutrition, and impoverished blood, producing results that seem little short of the miraculous.

Paine's celery compound builds up the system, purifies the blood, regulates the nerves. The weak and worn-out soon find their frames invigorated, their spirits renewed and their strength renewed.

It makes people well. It is superior to the ordinary nervines, bitters and sarsaparillas, as strength is better than weakness.

A Dancer in Kurdistan.

The performers had already drawn themselves up in line when I arrived, and a minute later the shrill notes of the pipe gave the signal for the dancing to commence. Some score of young men and women stood shoulder to shoulder, clapping hands, the line forming a crescent. At the given signal, the clapping of his hands by a youth who stood in front of the semicircle of performers, the dance commenced, the entire line of men and women stepping slowly forward and then back again, each pace being taken a little to the right, so that a rotating movement was given to the string of dancers. As the music quickened so did the pace, and at each step the body from the waist upward was bent forward and drawn back. Now were the steps themselves the same, for the youth who gave them time ran up and down the line clapping his hands and singing and shouting directions and changes.

The principal feature of the dance seemed to be the bringing down of the right foot smartly upon the ground at intervals, when, hand in hand, the whole company remained with their bodies bent for second or two, to spring back into position again at a fresh blow of the pipes. Meanwhile the slow rotating movement was maintained, so that the entire body was circling round the musicians. What laughter and fun there were! Men and girls giving themselves up to the enjoyment of their national dance, which, graceful and exhilarating, bore no trace of the sensual movements which usually mark the art of dancing in the east. —Blackwood's Magazine.

Telegraphing.

An expert telegrapher says, "Between New York and Philadelphia, over a copper wire weighing 300 pounds to the mile, 3,000 words per minute can be recorded, and with a copper wire of 850 pounds to the mile 1,000 words per minute can be carried from New York to Chicago."

CAUSE OF DEATHS OF MORE THAN TWENTY THOUSAND NATIVES ANNUALLY.

Every half hour in India, on the average, a death occurs from snake poisoning. The total number of deaths from this cause in a day is about 50, and in a year about 50,000. Fortunately for the maintenance of the British power in India, these casualties are confined almost entirely to the poorer and more ignorant natives.

These natives are themselves largely to blame for the frequency with which they are stricken down by the poisonous reptiles. They habitually go about with bare feet, making so little noise that the snake is surprised and bites, whereas if it had been warned of the native's approach it would have slunk harmlessly out of the way.

The waters about India contain sea serpents, as to whose genuineness there can be no doubt. They are without exception poisonous and are especially numerous in the bay of Bengal. They sometimes penetrate the city water pipes. They have coiled tails, by which they steer themselves. The effect of receiving their poison into the human system is to raise the spirits and cause a feeling of great sociability. This gradually passes off and the victim dies at the end of three days.

The British government offers large rewards annually for the heads of poisonous snakes. Consequently great numbers are destroyed. An obstacle to their extermination is the veneration with which the natives regard some of the most poisonous varieties, especially the cobras. Comparatively few natives in India will kill a snake willingly.

Ingenuity in la Bordenaise.

At Bordenaise recently a wine merchant, whose business success was about in keeping with the bad quality of his wares, decided on a bold stroke. Every day he assiduously sought out a complete list of deaths of the well to do in the town, and also the date and hour of the funeral. He then wrote a letter to the deceased, thanking him for the order he had received, and at the very hour that the relatives were assembled at the house for the funeral his dray arrived with a quantity of wines and spirits. The bill was always paid, no one suspecting that he was being made the victim of an ingenious trick and quite convinced that the dead relative had given the order. —Galleguani Messenger.

Character. Character is like stock in trade; the more of it a man possesses the greater his facilities for making additions to it. Character is power—is influence; it makes friends, creates funds, draws patronage and support, and opens a sure and easy way to wealth, honor and happiness. —J. Hawes.

The Ways of the Fijians.

The national character of Fiji finds its best expression in the songs once common among the natives, but now, under Christian influences, almost obsolete. These songs, or mekeas, as they are called, generally recount the story of some ancient hero, of some military campaign or naval expedition, or perhaps of a peaceful fishing excursion. They are generally sung of evenings by the men only, who assemble for the purpose in one of their long, low huts. Here they sit in solemn state on mats laid upon the ground, the only light being that of a smoky fire in one end. According to Major Abercrombie, an eyewitness of the ceremony, one man begins the chant alone; a second soon joins him, then a few more, till finally all present have taken it up, accompanying the wild music by much pantomime and earnest gesticulation. The time is beaten upon a wooden drum by one of their number, and is occasionally accentuated by a general clapping of the hands. After a certain climax has been reached the music stops quite abruptly with one loud clap. —Popular Science Monthly.

Masters of the World.

Simple words, short maxims, homely truths, old sayings, are the masters of the world. Great reformations, great revolutions in society, great eras in human progress and improvement, start from good words, right words, sound words, spoken in the fitting time, and finding their way to human hearts as easily as the birds find their homes. —D.
